

CHRIST Inspired

News from KCC

February 10, 2016

Octane & JAM are on MidWinter Break & will resume on Wednesday, February 17th.

We continued our series. I Vote Jesus on Sunday asking the question. "Does Jesus vote you?" The answer is "yes." God has elected that you, or those who have received Christ, will spend eternity with Him. That is the most important election that matters.

We have two weeks of our series left. Both of them will deal with seeing signs and being prepared for the end of times. This Sunday Tony Wolf will share for a few minutes during service and the 21st I have invited elected officials from the President to our local officials to be present so we can pray over them. I have only received a couple of RSVP's but will still pray that more will join us. I look forward to worshipping with you Sunday. ~ Andy B.

KidStuf is THIS SUNDAY at 11:00am in the Lower Level for all kids Kindergarten through 5th Grade!

There's this really great and rather bizarre story in Exodus 17:8-13 where Joshua is battling a group of people called the Amalekites. As the battle starts, Moses is standing on a hill with his brother Aaron and another guy named, Hur. And there Moses is, holding up the staff of God. As long as Moses keeps his arms up, the Israelites are winning. But when he drops his arms, the Israelites start losing. So Hur and Aaron make this really great decision. They hold up Moses' arms - and with God's help, the Israelites are victorious.

Bottom Line: We can work together to help someone else succeed.

Just like Hur and Aaron, it's important for a child to realize that working together isn't just about doing something for yourself. You can work with other people to help them win at life too.

Father God

By Jody Terrell, Youth Minister

As our High School small group is reading through Crazy Love by Francis Chan, I find that I am once again challenged to think about God as a father. Now I know that what we normally, and naturally do when we hear this, is to project the attributes of our own fathers, or other people's father's onto God. This, however, misses who God really is, and limits His love for us in our minds.

I have a wonderful earthly father who loves me, and has set a great example for me. He has provided for his family and worked tirelessly to make sure that we always had everything we needed. He brought us up in the church and I will always love him and appreciate what He has done for us.

My sense of God's love for me grew immensely when I had kids of my own. I just want to enjoy time with my boys as they grow and experience life with them. I love to hear them laugh and it hurts me when they are in pain, or sick, or sad. They bring a joy to my life that is different than anything else I have ever experienced. They are part of Me. I love to see the wheels turning in their heads and to see them realize or learn something new. I rejoice when they rejoice, and am sad when they are sad.

If I, a human can love my children like that, how much more perfectly does God love you and I? it is an amazing thought that God wants to watch us play, and learn, and grow, and become the men and women that he has designed us to be. When my boys do something wrong I try my best to discipline them and to teach them why what they did was wrong, and also make sure that they know I love them anyway. There is nothing that they will do that will make me not love them and always want to take them back. They will always be loved by me and want them to want to be with me.

I can't imagine how much it must hurt God when we don't want to spend time with him, or reject Him completely. We have a Heavenly father who loves us and wants the best for us. I think that when we think about God in these terms, the natural response is to seek Him and desire his company and wisdom, to know Him for who He is.
